BUILDING THE TOWER OF INVINCIBILITY IN WASHINGTON, D.C.

An Enduring Symbol of the Knowledge to Prevent War and to Secure America's Peace and Sovereignty

Opening Statement by Jeffrey S. Abramson
Partner, The Tower Companies, Washington, D.C.

October 5, 2007

Hay-Adams Hotel, Washington, D.C.

Thank for you for joining me today. I feel privileged to present my plans for a Tower of Invincibility for the nation's capital.

At the heart of Washington, D.C., is the National Mall, the center of our national heritage, and home to the enduring symbols of our country—our freedoms, our ideals, our sovereignty as a nation.

These include monuments to great presidents and memorials honoring patriots who fought in past wars in the name of our freedom and peace.

Today, I want to announce my plans to build a new monument in our nation's capital—the Tower of Invincibility. I am also inviting the public to decide where this monument to invincibility should be built.

I have been asked, “Why do we need another monument?”

The Tower of Invincibility will be a monument like none other. It will be an enduring symbol of the knowledge to prevent war.

The Tower of Invincibility will be a striking white marble-clad structure. It will be approximately 20,000 square feet, 12 stories high, with an observatory on top that will provide 360-degree views of the city. The Tower will require a minimum of one acre of land for the building and public gardens. It will incorporate green, sustainable design and will house multimedia exhibitions on world peace and national invincibility.

I've also been asked what is meant by “invincibility”? Do I mean military might—the ability of one nation to crush another? Of course not. And as we've seen only too clearly, that is impossible anyway. An invincible nation is a nation that can prevent war: National consciousness is so unified, coherent, integrated that it does not create enmity in the world, it does not create enemies.

I am not using the word “invincibility” lightly. I am keenly aware of just how serious this word is. I am a builder, and builders are very cautious. We double-engineer everything to ensure that the building won't collapse. In the same way, the defense of our nation has to be built on a solid foundation.

Others have asked how I can say that I am going to build a tower that is a symbol of American invincibility when it's clear that past approaches to safeguard the nation have not been adequate.

Today, every nation is vulnerable to attack. No military can guarantee invincible defense for the nation. It's worth stating again: No military can guarantee invincible defense. We have shown that we can attack a nation but we have not shown that we can adequately safeguard our nation and prevent an attack on our own borders.

Why have we failed? To answer that question, I would like to read a few words from an explanation by quantum physicist Dr. John Hagelin, director of the Global Union of Scientists for Peace and an expert in this field.

“Research shows conventional approaches fail because they do not address the underlying cause of violence and conflict: they do not relieve the acute political, ethnic, and religious tensions that fuel terrorism and conflict.

“What has been missing is an effective means to eliminate these deep-seated tensions.

“Science confirms there is now such an approach.

“Powerful new technologies of consciousness have emerged over the past 25 years based on the most advanced discoveries of modern science that have been shown to dramatically reduce terrorism, war, and other social violence. Research on these technologies has been published in leading academic journals and endorsed by hundreds of independent scientists and scholars. The efficacy of this approach is now beyond question.”

To conclude: The Tower of Invincibility will be a grand addition to the monuments that grace our Capital city because it will be a symbol not of past wars fought, but of future wars prevented.

I would now like to open for questions. I can also answer some questions that have come in advance by email.

What will be in the Tower?

The base of the Tower of Invincibility will serve as a Science Exhibition Hall and will provide, through state-of-the-art multimedia presentations, the most cutting edge discoveries in quantum physics, neuroscience, and physiology, which form the basis of this science of world peace and national invincibility--this science of how to prevent violence, conflict and war.

How will you make a nation “invincible?”

In the same way that a healthy body has the internal capability to prevent disease, an invincible nation has the internal capability to prevent war. This is possible by creating coherence in the national consciousness--in the life of the nation. And this is possible through technologies of consciousness. Transcendental Meditation is one such technology.

Can you be more specific?

There is extensive published scientific research to show that Transcendental Meditation reduces stress and improves health for the individual. Now there is a growing body of published research to show that when large groups of individuals--1000 to 2000 people--practice advanced meditation techniques together, there is a "spill-over" effect. The reduced stress in the individual spills over into society, creating calm and reducing societal stress, crime and violence for the entire population. Dr. John Hagelin is a renowned quantum physicist and director of the Global Union of Scientists for Peace. He is an expert this field.
